Welcome

Bordered by Mexico in the North, Guatemala in the West, and the Caribbean Sea in the East, Belize is a unique, vibrant country in Central America whose British colonial history strongly links it to the Caribbean. It has a hard – working, diverse, friendly, bilingual (with English being the official language), and well-educated workforce that bolsters an economy focused on growth. Quiet the popular tourist destination for its eco-friendly, pristine natural resources, Belize's rich soil, year round tropical climate, and long coast line creates an attractive and sustainable climate to foster niche products and services that cater to niche markets, such as adding values deriving from nature.

Belize's natural assets, progressive development policies, pro-business investment climate, and long-time democratic stability have created an ideal destination for investors seeking a sustainable harbor amidst the waves of global economic hardship. The Government of Belize is wholly committed to supporting the country's niche-oriented development model, while preserving the country's distinctiveness and fostering investor confidence. Likewise, the wide array of investment - related incentives have all continued to firmly reinforce the country's business-friendly reputation. Notable incentives include the Fiscal Incentives Program, the Export Processing Zone Program, the Free Zones Program, Retired Persons Program, and the Offshore Financial Services Incentive Program.

Educational Structure & Institutions

The Belizean school system is based on the British educational system and is broken down into three levels: primary, secondary, and tertiary. Belizean children begin their eight years of primary education with two years of "infant" classes (usually at the age of five), followed by six "standards" (the equivalent of US elementary school). Secondary education consists of four "forms", after which tertiary education begins at "sixth-form" or junior college. Students can also continue on to pursue University studies to earn a Bachelor's or Master's Degree.

Presently, there are 56 government funded, 211 government aided, and 30 private or specially assisted primary schools; 17 government funded, 25 government aided and 10 private or specially assisted high schools; 11 Junior Colleges and 3 Universities in Belize.

On August 1st, 2000 the University of Belize (UB) was inaugurated. UB is the National University in Belize with its central Campus located in the Capital City of Belmopan. Its campuses are located in three of the Country's six districts as well as a Marine Research Station at one of its Cayes and has a growing student population of over 2500 enrolled in both full and part-time programmes.

Quality teaching, research and extension services are top priorities and the University offers instruction leading to associate and bachelor degrees through its four faculties of Education and Arts, Management and Social Sciences, Nursing, Allied Health and Social Work, and Science and Technology. The institution constitutes of six centers and institutes which include Adult and Continuing Education Center, Early Childhood Foundation Center, Environmental Research Institute, Multi-cultural Studies Center, Regional Language Center (RLC), and History and Anthropology Center. UB also contributes to and participates in the multinational University of the West Indies (UWI), a regional institution with campuses in Jamaica, Barbados, and Trinidad. UWI maintains an extra-mural unit in Belize City.

In May of 2003, Galen University was established in San Ignacio, Cayo. Galen is a private university and offers undergraduate, graduate and professional level in business, arts and sciences, and education degree programs. The university offers dual degree programs as it has partnership with the University of Indianapolis and with The Watson School of Education at the University of North Carolina (UNCW). Belize is also home to four (4) offshore medical schools. These are the Medical School of the Americas (Belize), St. Luke's University School of Medicine, Central America Health Sciences University (Belize Medical College), and the Inter-American School of Medical Science. The curricula in the schools generally parallel those of medical schools in the United States.

Healthcare: Medical Structures & Facilities

Medical services and health care delivery in Belize are provided by a network of district hospitals, divided into four (4) regions – Northern Regional (Orange Walk and Corozal Districts); Central Region (Belize District); Western Regional Hospital (Cayo District); and Southern Regional Hospital (Stann Creek and Toledo Districts). The Karl Heusner Memorial Hospital (KMH), located in Belize City, serves as the national referral hospital in Belize, providing secondary and some tertiary care. Belize also has 9 private hospitals, 42 health centres and 35 health posts.

The Government of Belize is the main provider of health services. Central Government, through general revenue, funds government health services including the provision of pharmaceuticals with lower user charges for in-hospital care. Private hospitals can be found in Belize, namely La Loma Luz Hospital in the Cayo District, and Belize Medical Associates and Belize Healthcare Partners Ltd. in Belize City; there are also numerous other private clinics and diagnostic centres throughout the country, but mainly concentrated in Belize City.

Real Estate

Belize has land suitable for agricultural purposes in all six districts with an estimated 15,000 to 16,000 kilometers available. There exists great potential for intensive crop production, permanent tree crops, milpa agriculture, pasture and productive forestry.

The northern and southern lowlands are suitable for agricultural production. Land in the north is more alkaline, supporting the growth of crops such as sugar cane and papayas; land in the south is more acidic, supporting crops such as citrus, pineapple, mango, rice, and cashew.

Land in the Belize district is most suitable for ecotourism, pasture, and smallholder agriculture, while agricultural land in the Cayo district supports cattle rearing, and crops such as papayas, citrus, corn and beans.

The national grid utilizes a 115Kv transmission line extending from Corozal to Belize City, and onward to San Ignacio. The largest island, Ambergris Caye, is connected to the mainland via a 34.5 Kv submarine cable. Power supply is distributed at 110V or optional 220V. The five main sources of electricity are:

- Belize Electricity Company Ltd. (BECOL), which operates the Chalillo, Mollejon and Vaca Hydroelectric Facilities in Western Belize

Three systems - Belize City and surrounds, Belmopan, and Dangriga Town - utilize surface water (rivers), and one system in San Pedro purchases water from a water purveyor.

There are two (2) tertiary treatment facilities in Belize City and San Pedro (facultative lagoons plus maturation systems), and one (1) primary treatment facility (settling tank and sludge drying beds) in the City of Belmopan.

Water and sewage services are primarily provided by the national company, Belize Water Services Limited (BWSL). BWSL provides water for both residential and commercial use to the urban and surrounding areas of Belize. BWSL is also regulated by the Public Utilities Commission.

If a water distribution pipe is available within 30 ft. (9 m) of the property boundary, BWSL will connect a customer within 7 days following the completion of the application process and the payment of the deposit and connection fee. If permission is needed to carry out the works from the municipal authority, the seven days commences immediately upon receipt of the required permission. Where a water distribution line is not available within thirty feet of the property, and the property is located within BWSL authorized service areas, the customer, after completing the application process and payment of applicable fees, will be notified within seven days as to when the required works will be completed.

If the property to be connected is outside of BWSL's authorized service area, the connection will be subject to the planned and budgeted expansion included in the company's five year business plan.
